HISTORICAL SKETCH.

"A NUMBER of individuals in Charlestown, deeply impressed with the importance of extending the means of grace more generally to the population, met for the purpose of free conversation," Nov. 16, 1832, at the house of Simeon Flint. As a result of this movement, the

was formed Dec. 5, 1832, and incorporated by the Legislature March 1, 1833.

The following articles, among others, formed the basis of the compact: —

1. "This association shall be known by the name of the Winthrop Society, in remembrance of the pious Governor, who with his associates, on the 30th of July, 1630, entered into solemn covenant and formed a church of Christ in Charlestown."

2. "It shall be required of every religious teacher admitted to the pulpit of this Society, that his profession and preaching correspond with the doctrines usually denominated Evangelical, such as was the faith of Baxter and Scott, Dwight and Payson."

3. "In the choice of a minister, the church to be connected with this Society shall in all cases have the right of nomination; and a call shall be given only on the concurrent vote of the Society."

Winthrop Church.

A number of brethren, chiefly members of the First Church, met Nov. 23, 1832, for the purpose of mutual consultation on the subject of forming a new Orthodox Church of Christ in Charlestown.

In a letter dated Dec. 17, 1832, and presented to the First Church, it was stated that "The contemplated separation will (in the opinion of the signers) materially augment the happiness and usefulness of the individual members, as well as the strength and prosperity of both branches of the same glorious community."

Jan. 9, 1833, an ecclesiastical council, Rev. Samuel Gile moderator, and Rev. Amos Blanchard scribe, organized the church under the name of the "Winthrop Church in Charlestown." The first public services of the new church were held for ten months in the Town Hall.

The original members numbered 44. From the First Church came 14 men and 21 women (the same number that withdrew from the original church in Boston in 1632, to form the First Church in Charlestown); 6 more came by letters from other churches, and 3 united on profession. Of these original members, 8* are now living; 4 are still members of this church.

The first house of worship, situated on Union Street, was begun in April, 1833, and dedicated Nov. 22, 1833. Its cost, with land and organ, was over $14,000. Amos Tufts, Simeon Flint, and Eliab P. Mackintire were chosen the first deacons; Chester Adams, in 1840.

Rev. Daniel Crosby was installed as the first pastor, Aug. 14, 1833. Rev. George W. Blagden, pastor of the Old South Church, Boston, preached the sermon. Mr. Crosby entered heart and soul into the new enterprise. When cautioned against overwork, he only replied, "I love the work, souls are perishing: how can I desist?" During his pastorate of eight years and nine months, 153 persons were added to the church on profession, and 124 by letter. He was dismissed, on account of impaired health, May 18, 1842, and died in Charlestown, Feb. 28, 1843, regretted by all. Over his grave at Mt. Auburn a tablet was erected by his grateful parishioners.

* Reuben Swan, Lemuel Gulliver, Hannah B. Sweetser, Eliza H. Flint, Mrs. S. Putnam Skilton, Mrs. Caroline H. Brewster, Mrs. William Tufts, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Barnes.

Rev. John Humphrey, son of President Humphrey of Amherst College, was installed Nov. 30, 1842. As frail in health as he was amiable in disposition and interesting in discourse, during his ministrations of four years and four months, 24 persons united on profession and 49 by letter. He was dismissed March 26, 1847; became pastor of a church in Binghamton, N. Y.; was called to a professorship in Hamilton College, which he was unable to accept; and died Dec. 2, 1854.

Rev. William I. Buddington, pastor of the First Church, wrote of him, "He was a friend whose society gladdened the days of my early ministry, and the hope of meeting him again brightens my anticipation of Heaven."

During Mr. Humphrey's pastorate, a movement was made to establish a third Orthodox society in Charlestown. Of this "Bethesda Church," Rev. Jesse Guernsey was the first and only pastor. Formed largely from the Winthrop Church, it soon disbanded for want of means to build a house of worship.

The Winthrop Society laid the corner-stone of the edifice in which it now worships, on Green Street, May 31, 1848, Dea. Mackintire giving the address and Rev. W. I. Buddington offering prayer. The house was dedicated March 14, 1849, and given "almost as a free offering to the community." Its cost, with land, was $38,781.33; and it was dedicated free from all incumbrance.

Rev. Benjamin Tappan was installed Oct. 4, 1848. His first dedicatory sermon in the new house was from Haggai ii. 9: "The glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former, and in this place will I give peace, saith the Lord of Hosts."

A season of great prosperity ensued. During Mr. Tappan's pastorate 120 persons were received by the church on profession, and 152 by letter, 40 of the latter from Bethesda Church, May 4, 1849.

Mr. Tappan was dismissed Aug. 10, 1857, and has now been settled over a church at Norridgewock, Me., for twenty-five years.

Rev. Abbott E. Kittredge became pastor of the Winthrop Church, Sept. 14, 1859. Coming directly from Andover Theological Seminary, he served very acceptably three years, and then was granted leave of absence for fifteen months to travel abroad. During these three years, 145 new members were received, 80 of whom were by profession of faith.

In his absence, Rev. S. R. Dennen supplied the pulpit, and 48 more members united, 38 by profession. Mr. Kittredge was dismissed Dec. 2, 1863, and is now the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Chicago, Ill., a church numbering over 2,000 members. The benevolent contributions of the second year of his ministry over Winthrop Church amounted to $4,790.

Dea. E. P. Mackintire died Feb. 3, 1864, the last of the "Trio of Deacons," whose early connection with this church gave it an exceptional success.

A year before his death he said to Mr. Dennen, "There are only two things I care to live for, — my children and the Winthrop Church." "To him," said Mr. Dennen, at his funeral, "this church owes much of the prosperity it has enjoyed; a pillar has fallen from this temple of Christ."

Rev. J. E. Rankin, the fifth pastor, was installed Dec. 1, 1864. His pastorate of nearly five years was blessed by the addition to the church of 191 persons, 113 of whom united on profession of their faith.

He was called to become the first pastor of a new Congregational church in Washington, D.C., and was dismissed from the Winthrop Church, Oct. 20, 1869. He is still at Washington.

Rev. Alexander S. Twombly, the present pastor, was installed May 2, 1872. The church had been for two years and a half without a settled minister.

During the nearly eleven years of this pastorate, Winthrop Church has received 222 persons to its communion, of whom 119 united by profession. The whole number now on the roll is 463.

Great changes have taken place, even during this pastorate. The death of prominent individuals like Nathan A. Tufts, Alfred Whitney, William Carleton, James Adams, and Joel W. Randall, and the removal from Charlestown of over sixty of our families, have changed in some respects the condition of the parish. The number of members, however, is about the same as it was ten years ago, while in unity, zeal, and adherence to the spirit and doctrine of the fathers, the church maintains its well-earned position and influence.

Sunday School Work.

The Winthrop Sunday School, established by vote of the church, assembled in the Town Hall, Jan. 20, 1833, numbering 12 boys, 20 girls, and 6 teachers.

Dea. E. P. Mackintire was superintendent for the first three years. In November, 1833, the school removed to the vestry on Union Street. During the year 1836 it was greatly blessed spiritually, and from 1836 to 1842 inclusive, of 142 additions to the church on profession, 85 were from the school.

When the church removed to Green Street in 1849, in one year the school received 527 additional scholars and 30 teachers, making a total membership of 923. The disbanded Bethesda Church returned this year over 70 scholars to the Winthrop Sunday School.

Of 248 schools reported at this time by the Massachusetts Sunday School Society, only two schools reported a larger membership; while the average attendance of the Winthrop School was larger by 54 than any other.

The school has had 14 superintendents, all of them able men, devoted to the work. Among the longer terms, Dea. Mackintire served three years; C. C. Dean, six years; George Hyde, fourteen years; James Adams, four years; Thomas Doane, four years; Moses H. Sargent, four years; and R. H. Parker, seven years.

The school reached its highest number since 1850 in 1862, when it numbered 822, the largest attendance on any Sunday being 720.

The penny contributions of the Winthrop Sunday School, as reported since 1844, have amounted to more than $8,000, including $200 given to the "Morning Star" (missionary ship). These contributions have been principally used to aid feeble Sunday schools in the West, and occasionally other causes in the line of Sunday-school work.

Among the many interesting facts relating to the school, one report (1859) states, that of 202 persons uniting with the church, 129 were from the school. Another report says that in six months of the year 1847, 24 scholars committed 11,695 verses of the Scripture to memory, one scholar reciting 1,174 verses, and two scholars 900 each.

The present number of scholars enrolled is 441 ; officers and teachers, 45. Other schools have been formed and our numbers diminished. It has never been the settled policy of this school to entice scholars from other schools, or to make gifts or entertainments a substitute for the attraction of sound and interesting instruction. The school may well be congratulated upon its past work and its present hopeful condition.

Connected with the main school is the Mission School at the Neck, organized by the City Missionary and Tract Society in 1850, but taken by Winthrop Church July 14, 1858, A. J. Rogers, superintendent.

From 1863 to 1866, Dea. James Adams conducted this mission work, followed by worthy successors, among whom was his son, Sidney E. Adams. It is now in charge of H. G. Tomlinson, and numbers 157 scholars and 14 teachers; average attendance, 105. It has been a means of great good to people living in that vicinity.

Benevolence.

In the first year of its formation, the Winthrop Church organized a "Benevolent Association, for the purpose of managing the collections for benevolent objects within the church."

This Association existed till 1850. Over $1,000 were collected, and given as the result, in the first annual report of Wm. Tufts, treasurer. This sum included a donation of $239 to Lane Seminary, Ohio.

The contributions steadily increased, until in 1842 over $2,000 were raised; in 1851, $3,357; in 1854, $4,351, including a gift of $650 to the Franklin Street Church, Somerville, then a new enterprise. In 1865 the collections amounted to $5,772, the largest sum ever contributed in a single year by this church.

The weekly-offering system was adopted in 1874, and $4,900 were collected. In 1881, $5,373 were contributed, including $1,500 subscribed by members of this society to the Charlestown Y. M. C. A.

The Winthrop Church and Society have thus assisted other church enterprises, supported city missionaries, educated young men for the ministry, carried on a mission school at the Neck, given largely to educational institutions at home and abroad, aided those who have suffered from fire and epidemics, and been constant in annual contributions to all the regular benevolent and missionary societies of the denomination.

The aggregate of all contributions by this church to purely benevolent objects during the half century is $155,488.

In addition to smaller gifts to colleges and seminaries, Carleton College, Minnesota, and Doane College, Nebraska, bear the names of two of the members of Winthrop Church, who have largely endowed those institutions.

Church Expenditure.

Besides the regular expenses of its own church worship and its Sunday schools, Winthrop Society has built two houses of worship; it has repaired, remodelled, and decorated its present sanctuary, and within the past eleven years has expended for these purposes not less than $16,000.

Its financial affairs have been so skilfully and successfully managed, that at the close of its fiftieth year, it now stands entirely free from debt. In 1876, under an act of the Legislature, this church and society authorized the deacons to hold as trustees all property represented by the Winthrop Church, "in order to secure it to the Evangelical Faith." This object has been substantially accomplished.

Patriotism.

During the Civil War this church, by its sacrifices and pulpit utterances, did its part in sustaining the government. It sent forth with official words of encouragement a noble band of young men, some of whom returned as officers, and some died in the service. Its pastor issued a circular letter to the young men of the church in the army, full of comfort and instruction.

Revivals.

The Winthrop Church has aimed, above all other results, to be a spiritual power. The prayerful piety of its founders, the seasons of special religious interest, and the number of admissions on profession of faith, attest the sincerity of this purpose and the earnestness with which it has been maintained.

Having confidence in God's blessing upon the faithful use of the ordinary means of grace, and calling no "evangelists" to its aid, it has enjoyed many periods of deep, spiritual life.

The first pastor, Rev. Daniel Crosby, was a true "Revivalist" in the best sense of the word. The church during his ministry was blessed with four distinct and glorious revivals of religion. Much of its success as a spiritual power may be traced back to the good work then accomplished in the young men and women, who have since proved themselves faithful by many years of service in its membership.

This spirit of the first pastor has been perpetuated under the guidance of the successive pastors, and even during the eight years and two months when the church has been without a pastor, the prayerful men and women, "whose heart God had touched," failed not to implore a blessing. Only in the two years, 1847 and 1880, when there was no settled minister over it, did the church have no accessions by profession. But in 1858, between the pastorates of Mr. Tappan and Mr. Kittredge, 30 joined on profession of faith. The years marked by the largest additions of members by conversion were 1836, 29; 1840, 31; 1842, 37; 1849, 28; 1858, 30; 1861, 32; 1863, 34; 1866, 35; 1875, 30, and 1877, (the year of the Moody Tabernacle services in Boston), 42.

Conclusion.

As was said in the semi-centennial discourse of the present pastor, Jan. 7, 1883, "The very name we bear is an inspiration to faith and good works. Winthrop, the name of statesman, soldier, gentleman, and Christian, the patronymic both of our own and the ancient parent church, is in itself a precious legacy.

"The silver font, presented by Lieut. Gov. Thomas L. Winthrop in 1833, and the pulpit Bible, given by Hon. Robert C. Winthrop in 1849, remind us constantly of our covenant and its obligations.

"The devoted men and women who have here prayed and labored, the 'great crowd of witnesses' who have gone to their reward, and the many 'harvestings of souls' granted to this church, call for new pledges of service and consecration.

"Continuing faithful, the 'Beauty of the Lord our God' will still rest upon us. He will establish the work of our hands upon us, and we shall ever hear His voice, as our fathers heard and obeyed it, bidding us, 'Go forward! Be not slack to possess the land.'"

GOVERNMENT OF THE CHURCH.

THE following Rules, Articles of Faith, and Form of Covenant have been adopted by the church.

Officers of the Church.

The annual meeting of the church shall be on the second Friday of January, when the following officers shall be chosen by ballot, viz. : —

A Clerk, who shall keep the records.

A Treasurer, who shall have charge of all money and property belonging to the church, and who shall make a report at the annual meeting.

An Examining Committee, of whom the pastor and deacons shall constitute a part, who shall examine all applicants for admission, and present the names of such as they approve to the church.

Standing Rules.

1. Candidates shall be propounded to the church, and notice given to the congregation, at least two weeks previous to admission.

2. The Lord's Supper shall be celebrated once in two months, on the afternoon of the first Sunday in January, March, May, July, September, and November, when such as join the church by profession shall be publicly received.

3. Members of this church who move from the city are expected to transfer their membership from us, and to unite with some church in or near the place where they reside, within one year from the time of their removal, unless they shall give satisfactory reasons for delay.

Members who shall have been absent from the city three years or more, and have not communicated with the church, shall, if no satisfactory information can be obtained respecting them, be no longer considered under the watch and care of the church.

4. Members of other churches, who may wish to commune with us for more than one year, are expected to transfer their membership to this church, unless they give satisfactory reasons to the Examining Committee.

5. It is the duty of the members to attend such stated meetings as are appointed by vote of the church, unless providentially prevented.

6. Any member having cause of complaint against another should immediately seek to have it removed, as directed in Matthew xviii. 15–17.

7. This church considers immoral conduct, breach of express covenant vows, neglect of acknowledged religious or relative duties, and avowed disbelief of the articles of faith assented to by the members, as offences subject to the censure of the church.

8. The censures inflicted on offenders are private reproof, public admonition, or excommunication, according to the aggravation of the offence. While a case of discipline is pending, the individual may be suspended from the privileges of the church.

9. The members of this church are required to abstain from the use of and the traffic in ardent spirits, except so far as may be necessary for medical purposes.

10. All applications for dismission from this church and recommendation to other churches shall be made in writing, and shall not be acted upon for one week from the time the application is presented at a regular meeting of the church.

Form of Admission.

ADDRESS.

Beloved Friends, — You have presented yourselves before God, his people, and the world, to make a solemn profession of your religious faith, and to take upon you the bonds of the everlasting covenant. We trust you have well considered the nature of this transaction, — the most solemn and momentous in which a mortal can ever engage, — and that you are prepared by divine grace to give yourselves away a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. Having examined and assented to the Articles of Faith adopted by this church, you will now profess the same before these witnesses.

Confession of Faith.

You believe in one God, the Creator, Preserver, and Governor of the Universe, who is infinite, eternal, and unchangeable in his power, wisdom, justice, goodness, mercy, and truth.

You believe that the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments were given by the inspiration of God; that they contain a complete and harmonious system of divine truth, and are the only perfect rule of Christian faith and practice.

You believe that God is revealed in the Scriptures as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

You believe that all have sinned, and are without holiness until their hearts are renewed by divine grace.

You believe that Christ, being God manifest in the flesh, has, by his sufferings and death, made an atonement for sin, on account of which pardon is offered to all, but that such is the aversion of man to the terms of salvation, that without the influences of the Holy Spirit, all refuse to comply with them.

You believe that there will be a general resurrection both of the just and the unjust, and a day of judgment, when all must give account to Christ of the deeds done in the body, when the wicked will go away into punishment, and the righteous into life, both of which states the Scriptures declare to be eternal.

Moreover, you believe that in the world the Lord Jesus Christ has a visible church, that its Sacraments are Baptism and the Lord's Supper, and that the essential conditions of membership are belief in the Scriptures, and a credible profession of faith in Christ, and of that newness of life which is wrought by the grace of God.

All these things you profess and heartily believe.

The Covenant.

In the presence of God, his holy angels, and this assembly, you now solemnly avouch the Lord Jehovah, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, to be your God, the object of your supreme affection, and your portion forever. You cordially acknowledge the Lord Jesus Christ as your only Saviour, and the Holy Spirit as your Sanctifier, Comforter, and Guide. You humbly and cheerfully devote yourselves to God in the everlasting covenant of his grace, you consecrate all your powers and faculties to his service and glory, and you promise, that through the assistance of his Spirit, you will cleave to Him as your chief good; that you will give diligent attendance to his word and ordinances; that you will seek the honor and interests of his kingdom; and that henceforth, denying all ungodliness and every worldly lust, you will live soberly, righteously, and godly in the world.

You do now cordially join yourselves to this church of Christ, engaging to strive earnestly for its peace, edification, and purity, and to walk with its members in charity, faithfulness, circumspection, meekness, and sobriety.

This you severally profess and engage.

In consequence of these professions and engagements, we, the members of this church [here the members of the church rise], affectionately receive you to our communion, and in the name of Christ declare you entitled to its privileges. We welcome you to this fellowship with us in the blessings of the Gospel, and on our part engage to watch over you, to love and pray for you, and to seek your edification, as long as you shall continue among us. Hereafter you can never withdraw from the watch and communion of the saints without a breach of covenant.

And now we pray the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the God of all grace and comfort, to bless you, to comfort your hearts, and establish you in every good word and work. May he guide and preserve you till death, and at last receive you and us to that blessed world where our love and joy shall be forever perfect! Amen.

Questions for Self-Examination.

1. Do I trust in Jesus Christ as my only Saviour, loving him supremely, and desiring to follow him in all things?

2. Is it the chief concern of my life to promote the cause of Christ? Do I pray for and co-operate with my pastor; and do all my plans and aims centre in the cause and kingdom of my Saviour?

3. Do I pray in secret daily, morning and evening; and do I read devoutly a portion of the Bible every day?

4. Am I doing all I can in the Sabbath school as a teacher, or in bringing others under its influence?

5. Do I uniformly attend and enjoy the weekly prayer-meetings of the church; and am I ready to contribute my share in sustaining them?

6. Am I laboring and praying for the salvation of individuals, for the members of my own family, for those with whom I am intimately connected in business, and other impenitent persons over whom I have an influence?

7. Do I enter heartily into all the plans of benevolence in which the church is engaged? Do I contribute statedly, and according to my ability? Am I habitually present at the monthly concert of prayer? And do I often pray for the missionaries of the Cross, and the conversion of the world?

Before Communion.

1. Have I the penitence and faith and self-consecration which become a sinner approaching the table of his Lord?

2. Have I grown in grace since the last communion?

3. Is it owing to my unfaithfulness that no more converted souls are now coming for the first time to the table of Christ?

Notices.

A Prayer and Conference Meeting is held in the vestry every Friday evening.

A Young People's Meeting is held in the small vestry every Monday evening.

The Preparatory Lecture is preached on the Friday evening before the Communion service.

Semi-Centennial Discourse.

HISTORY OF WINTHROP CHURCH

FOR FIFTY YEARS.

(CHARLESTOWN) BOSTON, MASS.

PREACHED BY THE PASTOR,

REV. ALEXANDER S. TWOMBLY,

JANUARY 7, 1883.

SERMON.

"Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it." — PSALMS xc. 16, 17.

THE history of a true church of Christ for fifty years is more than a mere record of events. A chosen band of disciples not only follows the natural order of development, but God's hand may be traced in the movements and changes that occur. The work is therefore his, and the glory of it belongs to him.

We celebrate, in this fiftieth anniversary of the Winthrop Church, not the achievements of men, but the good providence and grace of God; to him be all the praise! But in such a history the sovereignty of grace appears in the acts to which God has moved his people and in the circumstances by which he has surrounded them. His divine guidance is seen in his special dealings with the individuals that have composed the membership.

Along the course of external conditions runs the line of personal experiences, consecrated efforts, individual sacrifices, and persevering affections.

If then, some names of the originators and promoters of this Christian enterprise receive special mention, it is because they have embodied the faith and love entering into the work as a whole; while all on the list of membership, who have proved themselves worthy, are to be considered as represented by their leaders. They all blend into a single, organic life, in which the individuality of the church appears.

The might of the Divine Presence, which has entered into its elements of being, and the life of the Divine Son, in whose name it has toiled, do not prevent but serve to intensify this individuality. Consequently, we can trace particular relations of this society to the community in which it has been placed.

Then there is its unwritten history. We cannot ignore the fact that the men and women who have formed its membership year by year, have had inward experiences which cannot be told; struggles with the world and sin; wrestlings with God in prayer; conflicts, resulting in the strange peace of the gospel, and victories won for the cross of Christ.

The dramatic element is not wanting to the picture, — the history of families connected with this society; pathetic scenes; rejoicings over sons and daughters born to God, and sorrowings over wanderers from the fold; praises and lamentations at the graves of beloved pastors and friends; sudden illuminations of hope, and hopeless exclamations of despair, — all these things must be passed over in silence, although they form a part of God's dealings with his people.

The story will necessarily be partial. Its details are left for individuals to fill out each for himself, and yet enough may be set forth in order, to reveal the good hand of our God upon us from the first until now.

His hand was good to us at the very beginning. One peculiarity of a true church of Christ is that it may be as mature on the day of its formation in all essential elements of spiritual life, as it ever will be. It never need grow old. It may cease to exist as a separate organization, but it need not pass spiritually through periods of youth, manhood, and old age. It may be like the constant cloud on a mountain top, — formed of unseen mists attracted to it and passing rapidly over the summit, yet ever the same fleecy object at sunset as at dawn.

A church may increase in size by additions to its membership, and it may diminish as the years roll by; but in spiritual stature its membership may be full grown at any period of its history. Such was the character of this church at its birth. It took its first step, as the framers and signers of the Covenant declare, after "mature deliberation." Its first words were, "We believe that the cause of Evangelical piety will be promoted by the formation of a second Orthodox Congregational Church in this place." The letter of the twoscore men and women who were moved to establish this church, addressed in respectful and affectionate language to the parent church, reads as follows: "Facts demonstrate that this town, embracing a population of nine thousand souls, is not adequately furnished with houses for public worship or the means of grace; and we feel that we are called upon, by every consideration that can awaken sympathy or excite compassion, to do our utmost that these precious souls may be brought into the fold of the Redeemer."

They also say in the same letter, that they believe "the contemplated separation will materially augment the happiness and usefulness of the individual members, as well as the strength and prosperity of both branches of the same glorious community."

These words are the words of mature minds and experienced souls. When a little gathering of these earnest hearts met, on the 23d of November, 1832, in the quiet parlor of Dea. Flint's house, on the corner of what was then called Bow and Arrow Streets, and when they pledged, in the truest spirit of self-sacrifice, their contributions to the work, such was the enthusiasm of the hour that one youth not quite seventeen years of age, though not a church member, gladly placed opposite his name the sum of seventeen dollars, which he must save out of the wages which he was just beginning to receive for his daily labor. We need not say that he became afterwards a strong member of this church. And when on the evening of the 9th of January, 1833, the band of forty-four members (fourteen men and twenty-one women from the Frst Parish,* six from other churches and three on profession) was organized into the new church, it was not as an infant in its cradle, but as a man full grown, capable of understanding and performing the word and purposes of God.

* This was exactly the number from the original First Church of Boston who formed the First Parish Church in Charlestown, A. D. 1632.

The First Church worshipped at that time in a huge wooden structure, venerable with historical associations of two hundred years, although the building itself was only fifty years old.

In the aisle stood the little company (eight of whom are still living, four are now members of this church, and six are present here with us to day).* The scene, as told by an eye-witness, was most impressive.

On the council called to organize the new body were the pastor and delegates from two churches (Salem Street and Bowdoin Street) now extinct; also the pastor and delegate of Park Street Church, and a delegate from the Union Church, together with ministers and delegates from other churches out of town. Not one of that council is now living; but when I mention the revered names of the Revs. Joel Lindley, Hubbard Winslow, Amos Blanchard, David Greene, and Brothers Julius A. Palmer and John Gulliver, you will at once perceive the character of the men of which it was composed. Of this council, Rev. Samuel Gile, from the church at Milton, was moderator and Rev. Amos Blanchard scribe.

Already a confession of faith had been framed and adopted, and when the sermon had been preached by Rev. Mr. Blanchard, the members of the new organization solmenly entered into covenant with God and each other, and were pronounced a regularly organized church.

Thus the Winthrop Church came into being. Its first meeting (Jan. 11, 1833) after its formation, at the house of Amos Tufts, reveals to us the tone of its spirituality and the ripeness of its powers. After the transaction of necessary business, relating to the choice of deacons, clerk, and the organization of a Sabbath school, "the interesting occasion† was improved . . . in a spirit of humble gratitude and praise."

"The occasion and the circumstances," writes William

Tufts, the newly elected clerk, "loudly demanded of us the entire consecration of ourselves, our all, to the blessed work of promoting the kingdom of our Divine Redeemer and the salvation of immortal souls."

The first public services of the new organization were held in the Town Hall, on the spot where the Public Library now stands.

"Some who were then children remember the eagerness with which they went up those rude stairs, into a hall, which though devoid of all outward attractions, seemed filled with the glory of the ancient temple." Rev. Jacob Abbott, principal of the Mt. Vernon School, Boston, officiated.

Among other preachers in that hall, during those early days, was Dr. William Adams, of New York, whose courtly grace, eloquence, and spiritual fervor produced a marked impression on the audience, in contrast with the homely furnishings of the place of meeting. At that time the singing was accompanied by a double bass-viol and a clarionet. It was not long however before a meeting-house was built on Union Street for the new parish, a structure "beautiful in its simplicity," as Dr. Blagden said of it soon after it was occupied. By November, 1833, it was ready for use. Its cost, with land and organ, was about $14,000.* In it the congregation grew from a handful to fill its walls, and when the present edifice was built on Green Street, the site of the old structure was occupied by three brick dwelling-houses, the homes of Dea. Mackintire and the brothers Nathan A. and Samuel F. Tufts. Thus the hallowed associations of that consecrated spot were continued.† With such a beginning and with such leaders, who can wonder that "the work of their hands was established upon them"?

A church is apt to perpetuate the influences under which it is founded, and to mould its future upon the principles which distinguish it at first. The spirit of its founders lives in the choice of similar successors, and seldom do violent changes destroy the original purpose and polity of a godly beginning. Let us then dwell a few moments on the character of the principal movers in the new enterprise.

The first deacon of Winthrop Church was Amos Tufts. He had been a deacon in the First Parish Church, and was seventy years old when elected to the same office in the new church. "His liberal and comprehensive mind," says his biographer,* "had a 'happy facility' for appreciating and accepting any projects and improvements which were unknown in his early days." "Firm, self-controlled, and conscientious, his religious character was marked by ardor, humility, and simplicity."

He lived only seven years after this church was organized, but left to us as his legacy, five sons in the glory of their manhood, and one daughter, Mrs. E. P. Mackintire, all of them active and prominent members of this society.†

Then came the "Trio of Deacons," who were identified with the life and history of the church for nearly a quarter of a century of its existence, — Chester Adams, Simeon Flint, and Eliab P. Mackintire.

Dea. Chester Adams was as his pastor said of him "one of the long-headed men, who are of incalculable service in any church; and his judgment was seldom biassed by any over-sanguine feeling." For thirty-three years cashier, and eight years president of a bank, there were times "when he manifested great decision and resolution, confronting knavery with a most searching glance, and bringing out its cringing and terrified confessions of guilt. He was the last man with whom the rogue would have cared to deal."‡ In the movement to form the Winthrop Church, he lent his aid especially to make the whole basis of its organization as sound as possible. Elected a deacon in 1840, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Amos Tufts, he died in 1855, leaving a worthy successor in his son, the late Dea. James Adams, who in resolution of character and affection for this church carried forward the work so nobly begun. Yonder clock was a gift to the church from Chester Adams in 1835.

Dea. Simeon Flint was a somewhat different man. "Sunny, benignant, guileless, and tender, decided in character, forcible, but concise in word, of tact in management, and with a rare spirit of conciliation, he had withal a ready humor, which brought sunshine into many a shady place." His store on Main Street, near Henley Street, was called the "Winthrop Exchange" by those who were accustomed on their way to town to stop in for a morning call.

During those early years, the conversation of the brethren in that place of almost daily meeting would turn on such questions as the following: "Were any persons newly impressed on the Sabbath?" "For whom shall we especially pray this week?" and "Where can we now work the best?"

And so in constant, unobtrusive labor and prayer the good deacon gave his time, his house, his store to the Lord's work. Who can estimate the value of such a disciple in the upbuilding of a church?

Of Dea. Flint, Rev. Benjamin Tappan writes, "I was admitted to great intimacy and received great kindness from him." "How often have I heard him pray so simply and confidingly to his 'dear Saviour.' I saw him on his deathbed with almost the face of a saint in glory. I shall never forget him." He died Oct. 20, 1857, leaving behind the memory of one upon whom indeed was the "beauty of the Lord."

Dea. Eliab P. Mackintire, the last of the "Trio of Deacons," was perhaps the most marked figure in the early history of this church, and remained as a "pillar" in it for thirty-one years. He was fitted, both by natural gifts and a devoted piety, for prominence in the church of Christ. He had the rare faculty of leading without exciting envy. He could guide without giving offence, and command respect without usurping the prerogatives of others. As deacon thirty-one years, superintendent of the Sabbath school three years, and treasurer of the church twenty-four years, he was so fully identified with this society, that when the Winthrop

Church was spoken of anywhere, he was at once brought to mind.

His heart was bound up in its welfare, and his time and strength were given to its care.

His example was its support, and his means were always at its disposal, according to his ability. A man of great energy and piety, he will long be remembered as a leader without ambition, and a landmark in the history of this church.

There are other names, which ought not to be passed by, of men and women devoted to this society in the period of its early formation and growth.

John Gammell, or "Father" Gammell (as he was familiarly known), was a man of singular gifts in the sphere he long occupied as a missionary to the poor of Charlestown. Quaint in speech and manners, almost blind, he possessed such rare native wit and such a pure soul, that his presence shed light wherever he went; apt in poetical and Scriptural quotations, he was most interesting in social meetings, but equally welcome as the almoner of the church and the inspirer of spiritual fervor.

Rev. Jared Curtis, the "dear old chaplain" of the State Prison, had "a heart as light and gay as a child," but which was always overflowing with sympathy and affection.

Rev. William S. Porter, an earnest worker; Rev. Asa Bullard, still the children's welcome friend; Dea. Matthew Skilton, dignified and firm; S. Putnam Skilton, a young man at that time, mild and gentle, but consistent in everything; Lemuel Gulliver, now living at Somerville; Rev. Dr. Hooker, "fervent and apostolic."

Also, Joseph F. Tufts, sharing the burdens of the work, his wife a true fellow-worker; Reuben Swan, Jr., a teacher, and influential; Christopher C. Dean, a useful superintendent, and the treasurer of the Massachusetts Sabbath SchoolSociety; Rev. L. I. Hoadley, kind and gentlemanly, scholarly and good; Dea. Henry Hill, a very earnest, hearty Christian in speech and manner; George Swan, prominent in the choir and long a teacher of the Warren School; Thomas G. Lee, superintendent of the McLean Asylum, some of whose patients he would occasionally bring to church ; Norman Seaver, William Carleton, and others, who are now living.

Many women also, equally important and helpful, may be found on the church record of those early days, but for whose faithful and unwearied devotion the new responsibilities of the enterprise could not have been met. "A circle of them, all warm friends, met together for weekly prayer, having seasons of wonderful blessings and enjoyment, — Mrs. Vinal, Mrs. Gilbert Tufts, Mrs. Mackintire, Mrs. Heman Doane, Mrs. Jaquith, Mrs. Kendall, and Mrs. Souther."

But perhaps God's best gift to this society, in those times of labor and self-denial, was the first pastor of the Winthrop Church, Rev. Daniel Crosby. Installed over this church and society Aug. 14, 1833, — sermon by Rev. G. W. Blagden, — in the full bloom of his powers, with a thorough spiritual preparation for his work, and a ripe experience in another parish (Conway, Mass.), this man of thirty-four years became the animating soul of the new enterprise from the very first.

"He understood," says the Rev. David Green in a sermon at his funeral, "the nature and responsibility of his work" "As a public religious teacher he was lucid, scriptural and rational. There was a vein of common-sense and practicalness, an honesty of intention, and a directness of aim," which gave his discourses "a peculiar freshness and charm."

"His appeals to the conscience and heart were adapted to melt the hardest transgressors."

"He brought forth no new theological speculations." He gained a peculiar hold on the younger portion of his congregation. He held strong views of human depravity, but he also knew the gospel remedy. As a pastor, he was ever watchful and laborious, and did not spare his strength while any work remained to be done. He gave the church a great missionary impulse. His monthly concert exercises are said to have been remarkable for the interest they awakened, and for the originality of his methods. Without being distinguished for uncommon graces of person or manner, "with no fascinations of elocution, or style, or fancy," he secured such universal respect and love that the results of his ministry here, of eight years and nine months, were wonderful. By the blessing of God upon his faithful exertions, this church was enlarged in four distinct and powerful revivals of religion.

"He was willing to wear out," says his biographer, and, when cautioned against overwork, would only reply, "I love the work; souls are perishing: how can I desist?" He was "almost imprudent" in his disregard of health and life. He lived but a few months after his resignation of this charge, but he left the church, which he took when composed of only forty-four members, two hundred and sixty-seven strong, one hundred and fifty-three persons having been added by profession, and one hundred and twenty-four by letter, during his ministry.*

The two sad events, the dismission of Mr. Crosby on account of ill health, May 18, 1842, and his death Feb. 28, 1843, closed the history of the first ten years of Winthrop Church. One of the first members, a lady still warmly engaging with us in every good work, writes of that first decade as follows: "Who that lived during those early years will forget the weekly meetings held in private houses? Huge wood fires we well remember, and feeble lights, with often very primitive surroundings, but rooms so full that no more could enter. Saturday-evening meetings of a few friends, to ask a blessing on the services of the Sabbath. Also larger meetings of a similar kind in the pastor's study. To us, the house on the corner of High and School Streets was a hallowed place."

"The study, an 'upper room,' is well remembered. In that house our beloved pastor died, and from it passed to glory.

His grave is at Mt. Auburn, in a lot belonging to one of his parishioners, an old man, who, in his old age, was converted under Mr. Crosby's ministrations.

Over the dear pastor's grave a tablet inscribed with words of reverent love was placed by his grateful flock. His wife, whom no one knew but to love, now lives at Waterbury, Conn.

* The year 1836 was remarkable for its ingathering of many, who became a strong, working element in the church for years afterwards.

During times of special religious interest, morning meetings, beginning at six o'clock, were also held. Before daylight, and sometimes through banks of snow, we remember setting forth. But what of that? Such warm, fervent prayers, such pleadings for God's spirit, give a melody to the memory of a morning hour of prayer which words cannot disclose.

But the golden days of that decade (continues the same writer) were the four glorious seasons of revival. Converts from among the old and the young, becoming knit together in Christian love, stood up in groups of twenty-seven, twenty-four, eighteen, in the aisle of the Union Street Church, until the number of one hundred and fifty-one was reached.

Some of them still live, working in different churches as well as in our own. Most of them, however, have now passed away.

The almost glorified face of the pastor, as those for whom he had labored and prayed night and day stood before him, comes vividly to mind. No aid had been sought from outside sources. The pastor and the church had quietly worked, had earnestly prayed, and the harvest followed."

It is no wonder that the "beauty of the Lord" was upon a church thus begun and continued. It is not strange that the work of such hands and hearts has been "established," and that its glory now "appears unto the children" of these faithful disciples.

The times in which they labored were such as would now be called primitive, in comparison with the era in which we live.

Boston in 1833 had not been much enlarged in area for one hundred years.* There was but one free avenue to it from the suburbs, and that was over Roxbury Neck. East Boston was then scarcely more than a barren waste. South Boston had only about five thousand inhabitants. There was but a handful of houses between what is now Dover Street and the Roxbury line.

* See report of E. J. Howard to Boston Board of Trade, 1880.

The lands east and west of Washington Street on the Neck were pastures, and a portion of the Common was used for feeding cows. Beacon Street opposite the Common contained the houses of the new aristocracy, while the older families of Boston clung to their homesteads on Tremont, Summer, Franklin, Federal, High, and Purchase Streets, and on Fort Hill. Dock Square was the business centre of the city. The old "hourlies" had just begun to ply between the city and Cambridge, Roxbury, and South Boston. The public houses were inns and taverns. The sign of "St. George and the Dragon" swung in 1830 over the entrance of the old Marlboro Hotel, on Washington Street. At that time, the Albany stage started through the arched gateway of Earl's Coffee House each week.

The old Hancock House, still in possession of the governor's family, was standing hard by the State House; and many old buildings carried one back beyond the days of the Revolution. Fifty years ago, the project of a railroad from Boston to Albany was undertaken with many misgivings. The able editor of the Boston Courier pronounced it in 1830 as "useless as a railroad from Boston to the moon." Within ten years however, six railroads had their trains regularly running out of the city.

Charlestown then had about nine thousand inhabitants. Some here present remember how it appeared forty or fifty years ago. The half-built Monument, with a derrick at the top and caving banks of sand on all sides beneath it, was slowly growing towards the skies. None of the fine public buildings now ornamenting our streets had been erected. Only the Harvard Unitarian Church edifice, of all our present meeting-houses, lifted its spire to heaven.

Bunker Hill was a lofty pasture, with one or two farm-houses upon it. Where Bartlett Street now runs, deep gullies, with a line of clay ponds, ran down to Mystic River, towards a point near the beginning of the old ungainly bridge to Chelsea. There was hardly a single brick block out of Main Street, the mansions of the wealthier inhabitants being mostly large, square, wooden houses, surrounded by extensive walls and garden plots.

Where our Winthrop Church now stands, a garden full of blooming trees and plants made the street in reality "Green" in spring and summer. The pastor's house had a large garden, and High Street was very different in appearance from what it is now. No stately mansions surrounded Monument Square. One could stand near the Monument and see an open space to the Mystic River. The Navy Yard was where it now is, and gave importance to the town. The present First Parish Church was not built; our magnificent school-houses are creations of a later date, and City Square was not much better than an empty open space. The training-field, now Winthrop Square, was a play-ground (would that something like it existed still!) for the sports of boys and girls.

Charlestown was a sort of suburb of Boston, and the city folks moved into it to get a breath of country air.

I need not recount to you the changes of this memorable half-century, not only in our goodly city, but throughout our land and the world. Railroads, telegraphs, ocean cables, telephones, immigration, the press, the postal service, and all the multiplied appliances of public and domestic convenience, have made the former days seem homely in comparison with the times in which we live.

But, humble or not, those were the days for Christian consecration and self-denying devotion to the church of Christ. We may be thankful that the founders of this church lived in those days, before the full resources of this country had brought wealth and a foreign population, to change the tone and standard of living, and to foster the new ideas with which we must contend. It is true that when the Winthrop Church was founded, the Unitarian controversy had been waging for fifteen years. It is true also, that our first members speak of Charlestown as having a very large proportion of persons who did not attend church. They bewailed Sunday desecration and other departures from godly living. We may also suppose that human nature was about the same in their day as in ours; but at that time stricter rules of conduct were in vogue, — the catechism was taught, and the church kept stated days of fasting and devotion several times a year.

The young people came to the monthly missionary concerts with all the eagerness that our youth now flock to secular and not always harmless entertainments. Protracted meetings and frequent revivals were also considered as indispensable to a healthy growth of spirituality in the church. Let us praise our God for the soil in which our church was planted, and see to it that the fruit we offer is as sweet and sound.

Following this first decade, ever memorable in the history of our church, came six years more, during which the meeting-house in Union Street continued to be occcupied.

The Rev. John Humphrey, son of President Humphrey of Amherst College, was there installed Nov. 30, 1842, and remained as pastor until March 26, 1847, a period of four years and four months, during which twenty-four persons united on profession and forty-nine by letter.

"Mr. Humphrey entered upon his work at a most favorable time. The previous spring a precious revival season had been enjoyed, and the influence of it still lingered among the people.

"The first name entered upon the list of membership after Mr. Humphrey's settlement was that of James Adams,* Jan. 1, 1843. How well he honored his profession we all know. Of the seventy-three persons who united during this pastorate, six are now members of this church. But before two years had passed it was evident that the pastor's health was not equal to the requirements of his position. Unusually delicate, he was often unable to preach one sermon on Sunday, and frequently the deacons were called upon to conduct the evening meetings. Of this young minister, only twenty-six years of age when he entered upon this charge, Rev. W. I. Buddington, in the memoirs which he wrote of him, says,

* Mr. Adams was mayor of Charlestown in 1854. A characteristic incident is told of him at the time of a disastrous gale, when Minot Ledge Lighthouse was destroyed and much damage done in the vicinity of Boston. The Winthrop Church steeple on Green Street was in great danger, and ropes were drawn across the street to prevent passing. Mr. Adams daringly took a lantern, and, with the carpenter, Mr. A. Brown, at great risk mounted the tower to see if a catastrophe could be prevented.

'He was a friend whose society gladdened the days of my early ministry, and the hope of meeting him again brightens my anticipation of heaven.' Rev. Mr. Buddington was at that time pastor of the First Parish Church, and watched with solicitude the failing powers of his friend.

"'Although,' he says, 'the congregation and officers of the [Winthrop] church neither expected nor desired from him the amount of labor to which they had been used (in Mr. Crosby's time), yet, however sincere and honorable a people may be in such promises, it is not always possible to avoid the pressure inseparably connected with the ministry of a large and intelligent congregation'; and so in 1847, this scholarly and devout pastor resigned his place, and died regretted by all in 1854."

This church was not insensible to the manifold excellences of his character.

In a letter, written Aug. 13, 1855, Dea. Mackintire writes: "As a man, he was as amiable and lovely by nature as any one with whom it was ever my privilege to be acquainted. His preaching and public services were always interesting and instructive, and often exceedingly touching and affective. His manners were dignified and graceful, his style chaste and beautiful, and instruction from his lips, if it could not be said to come like a rushing torrent sweeping the surface, came in the more acceptable form of 'the dew and the gentle rain,' penetrating and fertilizing all within its influence." And that he was a man of ability we know from the fact that before his death he was offered, but declined, a professorship in Hamilton College.

It was during Mr. Humphrey's pastorate that the Bethesda Church enterprise was started.

This movement to establish a third Orthodox Congregational church in Charlestown was organized into a society Feb. 10, 1847. It was deemed necessary, inasmuch as a large class of people on the hill was not located within easy distance of any church. At that time the population of Charlestown was about 15,000 souls. Twenty-six members of Winthrop Church were dismissed to aid the new colony. Rev. Jesse Guernsey was settled over them June 10, 1847.

He was their first and only pastor. The movement was not successful, owing to the lack of pecuniary ability to build a house of worship; and when the new building was erected on Green Street in 1849, the Bethesda Church disbanded, and Ebenezer Ford and thirty-nine others were received May 4 to the Winthrop communion.

The successor of Mr. Humphrey was Rev. Benjamin Tappan, Jr., who was installed Oct. 4, 1848, and who remained in charge of the church eight years and ten months. Before Mr. Tappan came the project of a new meeting-house to supersede the structure on Union Street, which the congregation had outgrown, was matured. The corner-stone of the present edifice was laid May 31, 1848, Dea. Mackintire delivering an appropriate address, and Rev. Mr. Buddington, of the First Parish Church, offering prayer.

The undertaking was of such magnitude, in consideration of the ability of the society, that it was only because of its necessity and importance that it was conceived and carried out. The need of repairs, limited size and inferior location of the house on Union Street, and the rapid increase of population in the northerly portions of Charlestown, urged the society to provide better accommodations. Twenty thousand dollars were at once subscribed, and the building committee, aiming "to build a house that would be commodious, creditable to the society, and ornamental to the city," had the great joy of seeing the new edifice dedicated March 4, 1849, free from debt, in less than ten months from the laying of the corner-stone. The old building on Union Street was sold with the land for $7,000, and the cost of land, building, organ, and furnishing of the new church was $38,781.33, all of which was provided for, leaving pews valued at $5,000 in the hands of the society.

"The pews were mostly sold to those who furnished the means for building the house, and, with the exception of such as were occupied by their own families, were given up to the control of the society, to be let at the regular tax, the owners waiving the right to charge interest on the investment."

At the dedication, the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Tappan, preached from the suitable text (Haggai ii. 9), "The glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former, saith the Lord of hosts: and in this place will I give peace, saith the Lord of hosts"; and the joy of the people was well expressed by Wm. Tufts, the clerk of this church, in recording the occasion as "a precious, indeed a glorious, meeting."

The last meeting in the house on Union Street was held "with impressive and appropriate services," March 11, 1849, and the first meeting in the new edifice on Green Street, March 18, 1849.

Then followed a period of unexampled prosperity, both of an external and a spiritual sort. The house was new; its location was central and easy of access; the pew rents were low and within reach of the humblest; the Bethesda enterprise was abandoned, and a large number of persons transferred their membership to the Winthrop Church.

Two hundred and seventy-two persons were admitted to the church during Mr. Tappan's pastorate,—one hundred and twenty on profession and one hundred and fifty-two by letter. The Sunday school, under the superintendence of George Hyde and Alfred Skilton (for two years), was very large, and the "evidences of the Divine Presence and blessing were deeply affecting and encouraging." At this time, and for years, the choir was almost wholly composed of church members.

After a long and faithful service, Mr. Tappan was dismissed at his own request, Aug. 10, 1857, and became pastor of the Congregational Church in Norridgewock, Maine, where he now resides, having been its beloved and honored minister for the past twenty-five years. Winthrop Church was then for two years without a pastor; but during the interval there was no lack of interest or energetic labor. Forty-five persons became members of the church, thirty of them on profession of their faith, showing that the responsibilities of carrying on the work of the gospel were faithfully met.

The benevolent contributions during this period were more than $3,000 per annum.

The church and society then called to the pastorate Rev.

Abbott E. Kittredge, who was, at the time, a theological student at Andover. He accepted the position (a very trying one for a young man) with much hesitation, and was installed Sept. 14, 1859; but the success which under God attended his three years of active labor with this church, proved the wisdom of the choice.

Having the hearty co-operation of such officers as Deacons Mackintire, Bowers, Doane, and Whitney, and many able co-workers, some of whom are still members, the prosperity of the church continued as before.

Large congregations revealed the acceptable character of his public services in the community. The Sabbath school overflowed the rooms set apart for it. The young people especially listened with avidity, and in three years the church was strengthened by the addition of one hundred and forty-five new members, eighty of whom united by profession.

In the early part of the year 1862 the society showed its appreciation of his efforts by giving him, on account of his impaired health, a vacation of fifteen months, for travel in Europe. The Rev. S. R. Dennen was engaged to supply the pulpit during his absence, — a very happy arrangement, which proved instrumental in bringing forty-eight more members into the church, thirty-two of whom were on profession of their faith.

Mr. Kittredge's health not being fully restored, his resignation was finally accepted, and he was dismissed on his return from Europe, Dec. 2, 1863. His subsequent success as a minister in New York, and Chicago where he now has a church of 2,000 members, indicates the zeal and ability with which he served the first congregation to which he was called.

The benevolent contributions of this church in 1861, the second year of his pastorate, reached the large sum of $4,790. The missionary work in Charlestown among the poor was fostered at this time. In 1858 the sole charge of the mission in Winthrop Hall, at the Neck, had been assumed by this church, and the work was ardently prosecuted.

The year that followed the dismission of Mr. Kittredge was saddened by the death (Feb. 3, 1864) of Dea. E. P. Mackintire. A commemorative discourse by Rev. Mr. Tappan, his former pastor, sums up the services of this valuable disciple in a single sentence of the text: "We desire that every one of you do show the same diligence, and the full assurance of hope unto the end." (Heb. vi. 11.) A year before his death he said to Rev. Mr. Dennen (whose remarks at his funeral were eminently appropriate), "There are only two things I care to live for, — my children and the Winthrop Church." "To him," said Mr. Dennen, "this church owes much of the prosperity it enjoyed. A pillar has fallen from this temple of Christ."

The church had also met with heavy losses by the death of many faithful men and women, who with Dea. Mackintire, had given it their love and their labor.

William Tufts, clerk of the church for more than twenty-three years, S. Putnam Skilton Dr. Hayes, "Father" Gammell, George Alfred Skilton, Andrew K. Hunt, and many more names are mentioned in Mr. Tappan's discourse, as worthy to be held in tender remembrance by this church forever.

And yet the church continued to be strong and active, so that when Rev. J. E. Rankin was installed as the fifth pastor, Dec. 1, 1864, he found a united and efficient body ready to join him in renewed efforts for the growth and prosperity of the society.

His pastorate of nearly five years was blessed in its results. One hundred and thirteen persons united with the church on profession, and seventy-eight by letter.

The spirit which he brought to his work is well illustrated by a few sentences which I may be permitted to quote from his sermon on the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill in 1865.

Commemorating the deeds of the fathers, he eloquently condensed his subject into these expressions, "The heroism of the Revolution gave us a country. The heroism of our own times has redeemed and perpetuated it. We need the same heroism in the Christian church."

Mr. Rankin was called in 1869 to take charge of a new and important enterprise in Washington, D. C. The First Congregational Church of that city, needing a strong man, selected him for the work. He is still the acceptable pastor of that growing church. He was dismissed from the Winthrop Church, Oct. 20, 1869, and another interval of two years and six months elapsed, during which the church was without a pastor.

When the present pastor was installed, May 2, 1872, he found however, a vigorous and united society ready and eager to co-operate with him. Several new measures had already been perfected, such as the giving-up of the sermon on Sunday afternoons when the Lord's Supper was celebrated, and the introduction of an improved hymn-book (Songs of the Sanctuary).

A large sum was soon spent upon improvements of the church edifice: the pulpit was remodelled, tablets placed in the alcove, and a pastor's room provided for his convenience. In 1880 the church was thoroughly repaired and the audience-room decorated.

During the ten years and eight months so far in this pastorate, this church has been deprived by death of valuable members long identified with it. Two — Andrew Ellison and Mrs. Hester Wright — reached the extreme limit of ninety-eight years; and one, Jeremy Wilson, an original member, died at ninety-four.

In 1873, Nathan A. Tufts, one of the founders, and Dea. Alfred Whitney, devoted to good works, passed away. Then followed, in 1874, the death of Miss Betsy Putnam; in 1876, that of Mrs. Mary K. Flint; and in 1880, Miss Sarah C. Kettell died, all three having been original members. The lives of these faithful women had been like "trees planted in the courts of our God." In 1876, Mr. William Carleton died, leaving behind him the memory of a beneficence as unostentatious as it was large-handed and free. In 1877, Dr. H. C. Bickford, the beloved physician, removed to Woburn, and died in 1878. In 1880, the loss of Dea. James Adams seemed like the displacement of the keystone of an arch. In 1882, Seth Goldsmith finished his faithful course. But the Lord has graciously left us a few of the founders of this church, and several others whose religious history is the history of the Winthrop Church almost from its formation.

Therefore, notwithstanding these losses by death, and the removal during this period of more than sixty of our families from Charlestown, together with a recent remarkable exodus of our young people to other places, we have held our own in membership, and I trust in faith. During this pastorate this church has contributed over $40,000 to purely benevolent and religious objects, besides expending on repairs and decorations of this edifice about $15,000. The number of additions to the church has been two hundred and twenty-two, of whom one hundred and nineteen united on profession and one hundred and three by letter, so that we have now a membership of four hundred and sixty-two, after deducting the losses by dismissions and deaths.

To sum up then, the special characteristics of this church, by which its individuality as an organization is determined, it is evident,

First, that the Winthrop Church has aimed, above all other results, to be a spiritual power. The prayerful spirit of its founders, the seasons of special religious interest, some of which I have chronicled, the number of admissions by profession to this church (701),—more than one half of the whole list,—and especially the consistent lives of those who have been prominent in its history, attest this purpose. When thirty in 1875 united by profession, and forty-two in 1877, many of them young, it was the fruit of the same spirit which characterized the labors of the earlier years.

Never has this church forgotten that the reason for its establishment was the building up of the walls of Zion by the conversion of sinners to God and by the spiritual enlargement of believers.

Notwithstanding the attacks of modern unbelief and the various forms of popular dissent from the faith of the fathers, this church has stood true in its allegiance to the views which its founders cherished, of man's need of regeneration by the Holy Spirit, and of salvation by the atoning blood of Christ alone. It has never weakened the old doctrinal basis on which its founders planted here the standard of the cross.

From time to time slight changes of phraseology have been made in the form of the covenant. As published in the Manual of 1849, some sentences were omitted from the concluding address to candidates as needlessly harsh and comminatory. Also in the revision of the creed, made in 1879, under the eye of such men as Dea. James Adams and other conservative brethren of this church, there was a slight alteration of its form.

Its substance, however, as adopted by this church and now printed in the semi-centennial Manual, has not been altered or diminished in any essential particular. Our creed-statement has now a greater simplicity of expression on some points, a less explicit declaration of unimportant matters, but, as a basis of spiritual consecration to the work for which this church was founded, we believe it would receive the hearty sanction of the most careful framers of the first instrument, could any such reappear among us in the flesh.

Let us then, as we cherish the history of the spiritual fruitage of this church in the past, and as we desire that the "beauty of the Lord" may be upon us in the future, keep ever true to the grand aim of those who laid in prayer and hope the foundations of the structure.

In their own phrase, that "the cause of Evangelical piety may be promoted," they denied themselves in order to found this church upon the rock. Let us, who now stand upon its battlements and rear new towers, see to it that none of the firm principles at its base be undermined, bringing the whole fabric into peril of possible destruction.

Again, the Winthrop Church has always shown a progressive spirit, in harmony with the maintenance of essential truth. In its polity, its government, its benevolent contributions, its missionary spirit, its Sabbath-school work, — of which others will speak in full,* — its loyalty to the country, and in all the management of its pecuniary affairs, it has been abreast of the times.

The character of its succession of leaders, both pastors and laymen, is a proof of this progressive spirit. Its record will bear the most searching scrutiny in this respect. In its church government, while its policy has been scripturally firm, its measures have been always charitable, conciliatory, and kind. If its strict interpretation of the doctrine of a change of heart and its general carefulness in admitting candidates have sometimes kept its number of members "healthfully low," if it has never called in the aid of "Evangelists," believing that God blesses the most, the faithful use of the ordinary means of grace, it has at least been saved from much open scandal and internal dissension, and, consequently, it has done a quiet but most effective work. The comparatively few cases of discipline on its records show great charity and toleration towards delinquent members.

While Sabbath-breaking, profanity, falsehood, loose conduct, and the use of "false weights and measures" have been dealt with, in the case of incorrigible offenders, even to the extent of public excommunication from church membership, after much expostulation and entreaty, yet in cases where members, without intentional discourtesy or immoral conduct, have joined other churches holding widely differing doctrinal views, this church has simply erased their names from the roll and notified them of its action.

Even when two members joined the sect of so-called "Spiritualists" without even giving notice of their intention to do so, their names were quietly dropped, as no longer members of the Winthrop Church.

Dec. 9, 1834, the church voted that doubts on "Infant Baptism" be no bar to admission to membership.

Possibly the spirit of the present age is too easy in its discipline of delinquents, but we rejoice that even at a time (1840) when this church considered a single attendance at the theatre by a young lady, "under sudden and strong temptation," a disciplinary offence, it dealt very tenderly with such of its members as honestly embraced what it deemed to be harmful error.

And as in church government, so in all matters touching the national welfare, this church has stood among the foremost. Its declared sentiments concerning the temperance reform are embodied in its 9th By-Law. It stood firmly for the abolition of slavery, without yielding to the fanaticism of the abolition movement; and, during the civil war, the part its sons took in the actual conflict, and the labors of its daughters in aid of the Christian Commission, as well as its pulpit utterances in behalf of the Union, attest its loyalty to the country.

In the fall of 1862, Sereno D. Gammell, Henry Tappan, Frank Titus, and Lyman Randall enlisted for nine months.

Those who served longer (three years or more) were S. Putnam Skilton (in a light battery), Wm. Spaulding, Sereno D. Gammell (lieutentnat of heavy artillery), and Capt. Albert Gammell, who went through seventeen or eighteen battles with the Army of the Potomac but did not survive the war. Others may have served whose names we have not learned. Rev. Mr. Kittredge issued a circular letter to the young men of the church who were in the service, full of encouragement and comfort, which was highly appreciated. An extract from "Resolutions,"* adopted by the church Sept. 12, 1862, in response to a request from Sereno D. Gammell for approval of his course, shows the animus of the times.

If then the Winthrop Church has been true to the aim of its founders in seeking spiritual fruit by the aid of God's spirit, and in carrying out a progressive policy, there is evidence that it has not failed to manifest works of charity also, in agreement with its professions of love for the cause of Christ. In the very first year of its formation as a church it organized a "Benevolent Association," for

* Extract from "Resolutions" of Winthrop Church, Sept. 12, 1862.

"A letter having been received to-night, through the Church Committee, from Brother Sereno D. Gammell, informing us that, for reasons mentioned in his letter, he had felt it to be his duty to relinquish his studies for the present; and to enlist in the service of his country, and asking our approval of his course, it is therefore

"Resolved, That we appreciate very highly the feelings and sentiments expressed in his letter in relation to the fearful struggle that is now going on in our country, and his duty to engage in it; and while we regret most deeply the necessity that requires him to leave his studies, and to engage in the business of war, we canot but approve his decision, and we honor the noble spirit of Christian patriotism that has prompted him, with many others of our young men, to make such sacrifices for the maintenance of the government under which we live, and we assure him and them of our warmest sympathy and our most earnest prayers, while they are absent from us.

"Attest: GEO. E. MACKINTIRE, Clerk."

the purpose of "managing the collections for benevolent objects within the church." This association, with a president, treasurer, and directors, existed till 1850, when the regular church officers took charge of the work.

Over a thousand dollars (including a large donation to Lane Seminary, Ohio) were reported by the treasurer in his first annual returns. It was not a large or a rich membership, but its contributions continued steadily to increase, until in 1840 the amount rose to $1,741.

In 1842 over $2,000 were raised for purely benevolent purposes, and in 1851 the amount swelled to $3,357. In 1854 it was $4.351, including a gift to Franklin Street Church, Somerville, of $650, in aid of that new enterprise. In 1865 the collections aggregated $5,772, the largest sum ever contributed in a single year by this church.

(It must be remembered in this connection that a single individual, Wm. Carleton, for seventeen years — from 1850 to 1867 — gave annually $1,000 to the American Board.) The weekly-offering system was adopted in 1874, and $4,900 was the grand total of all collections and gifts for that year.* In 1881, $5,373 were contributed, including $1,500 subscribed by members of Winthrop Society to the Charlestown Young Men's Christian Association.

The aggregate of all benevolent contributions by this church and congregation for purely benevolent objects, during the half-century, is $155,488. The Ladies' Sewing Society has also sent to missionaries many gifts of clothing and household goods.

Now, when we consider that this society has built two meeting-houses, one in Union Street at a cost of $14 000, and our present edifice, costing in round numbers $40,000; also that it has expended in repairs, alterations, and decorations nearly $16,000 during the past eleven years alone, we may be truly thankful that God has given this people the will and the ability to do what they have done.

* The Children's Missionary Society, called "The Winthrop Helpers," paid to the Woman's Board in 1879, 1880, and 1881, $350. The Woman's Missionary Society, $208 since 1879.

We cannot boast of any wonderful liberality, for we might have done more; but we are grateful that the sum total has been no less, — God forbid that it ever shall diminish, — for this church began with a true missionary spirit, fostered by the zeal and labor of its first pastor, so that at home and abroad it has scattered wide its benefactions. Sending forth many trained disciples to be efficient helpers in all the neighboring churches, it has never begrudged pecuniary assistance, when needed in addition to its gift of men and women. It has aided schools, seminaries, and colleges at home and abroad. Carleton College, in Minnesota, owes its successful foundation to a gift of $50,000 from one of our members, whose name it bears; and another member of the congregation, by a gift of $10,000, helped to build "Willis Hall," of the same institution.* Doane College, Nebraska, also sprang from the fostering care of one of our deacons, and, in grateful remembrance of his efforts and munificent donations, it took his name. Charlestown has always been the "mother of colleges." "Harvard," "Tufts," "Carleton," and "Doane" bear to-day the names of her sons. Iowa College also received $1,830 from various individuals of this church during the thirteen years between 1843 and 1856. A number of other institutions have been assisted from time to time, among which are Hampton College, Virginia; Robert College of Constantinople, and the college of Central Turkey.

And as it has always been the aim of this church to uphold the dignity of the worship and ordinances of the sanctuary, to this end it has always encouraged and often assisted its young men in obtaining an education for the ministry. Well has it been repaid in the two instances I may perhaps be allowed to mention here, of help granted to Rev. Sereno D. Gammell, now pastor in Lynn, and to Rev. Andrew J. Rogers, who died May 6, 1876, after doing good service for the Master in Concord, Mass., and Biddeford, Me. (Among other young men of this church who have entered the ministry were Henry Crosby Weston, son of David B. Weston, who was settled in Sharon, Mass., until his health failed, and John W. Birchmore, a clergyman of the Episcopal Church at Hyde Park, and the author of a work entitled "Prophecy and History." John Doane is now studying at Oberlin, Ohio.)

This church has also constantly paid towards the support of a city missionary, and since 1858 has had sole charge of a flourishing mission school at the Neck. In 1861, $830 were subscribed by individuals to secure a hall for this mission. Winthrop Church has always responded liberally to calls for succor to the poor and the needy. Sufferers by fire or epidemic have received from it donations from time to time.

These benefactions are a part of our history, as is also the generous pecuniary treatment of the ministers of this church, when circumstances have called for gifts not stipulated "in the bond." Thus Mr. Humphrey was granted six months' extra salary from the date of his retirement from the pastorate. Mr. Tappan received the same token of good-will for the five months following the dissolution of his pastoral relationship.

When Mr. Kittredge went abroad for his health, $1,coo per annum and the supply of his pulpit were voted to him, and although he declined the latter when he found himself unable to resume his duties permanently, the church insisted on paying the amount as agreed. The monumental stones over Mr. Crosby's grave and over that of "Father" Gammell attest the same spirit.

There has also been a most judicious management of all financial matters connected with this church and society. From the formation of the church, it has always had experienced business men among its leaders. It has had professional men, and a large number of teachers, but its officers have been most prominent in mercantile life. Many have been distinguished by positions of trust in civil and political affairs, especially while Charlestown was a city by itself. The banking interests both of Boston and Charlestown have always been largely represented here.

Thus it has been ready for any financial emergency. It has foreseen danger and provided against it. In 1875, this church and society, by an act of the Legislature, authorized its deacons to hold as trustees all property represented by Winthrop Church, "in order to secure it to the Evangelical faith." This object has been substantially accomplished.

And so we stand to-day, a society, as free from all debt as when, thirty-four years ago, the building committee offered this edifice "almost as a free gift to this community."

On Sunday morning, May 7, 1882, after a sermon by the present pastor, this congregation celebrated the tenth anniversary of his settlement, by subscribing to pay the last debt on the church of $5,000. Eleven persons paid one half of it, nineteen, a quarter more, and one hundred and forty-two persons the balance. By prudence and generosity thus happily blended, the credit of Winthrop Church has always been perfectly good, even in the hardest of "hard times." To God's kind providence must also be attributed the preservation of our church edifice, both when on a midwinter night, during a storm in 1869, it was seriously damaged by fire, and when in 1880 several decayed timbers supporting the north tower were discovered in season to avert what might have been a fearful disaster.

And now, in closing this historical sketch of fifty years, need I remind you of the responsibilities which such a blessed inheritance lays upon our shoulders? We ought to be, with our advantages, even better than our fathers.

We have to-day upon our roll the living names of one third of all the members who have ever been connected with this church.* We represent in resident and active membership at least one quarter of this great company of 1,396 communicants; not a remnant, but a generation of disciples, in a community that has increased from 9,000 to 35,000 souls.

The very name we bear is a priceless legacy. The name of Winthrop, the patronymic of both this and our honored and venerable parent church, has always been an inspiration. Not only our great "cloud of witnesses," but the memory of our godly and chivalric first governor, who planted the earliest church this side the river, calls upon us to pray and labor that the work of God's hand may be still more gloriously established upon the generations yet to come.

The silver baptismal font, presented to this church in 1833 by a descendant of Winthrop,* and this Bible, given us in 1849 by another † no less honored son of him whose name we bear, are tokens of God's favor, and should ever be cherished as mementos of the faith and the ordinances committed to our trust.

From our "day of small things" God has made this church prominent among the churches. Its gradual increase has been a token of real prosperity. Its seasons of temporary depression and its times of refreshing have come alike from God. Its popularity (which occasionally may have tested its spirituality) has not unduly exalted it; neither have its thinner ranks caused it to doubt the goodness of the Lord.

Amid all its changes, devoted men and women have prayed and labored for its advancement and for a fresh harvesting of souls. Let us then, with due solemnity and joy, commit the destiny of our beloved church to Him who thus far hath led us on, pledging ourselves anew in cheerful consecration.

We are not to seal up this history of fifty years as the monks of mediæval days shut up the bones and ashes of the saints and martyrs in musty oaken chests, to hide them away as superstitious relics for future generations of worshippers, forgetful of their living power. Rather let us gather about this record as the chosen people surrounded the Ark of the Covenant, and girded themselves for its defence and speedy advance.

Where the battle raged most fiercely, there the precious symbol (containing the two tables of the law, the pot of manna, and the rod that budded) was brought to kindle braver devotion and more glorious hope. Whether it preceded the camp on its march or stood in the holy of holies, it served to remind Israel of Jehovah's past deliverances and their own present duties. Above it, the mercy seat, shadowed by the wings of cherubim, pledged to those that kept the law the fulfilment of the promises.

And so to us to-day (enshrining as we do the "beauty of the Lord our God" within the finished and imperishable history of half a century), let the wondrous story bring fresh courage. Let us bring it forth in days to come when tempted to despair of further conquest. Let it be present in all our future seasons of rejoicing, and let us leave it to those that shall come after us, that God's marvellous work may appear unto his servants and his glory to their children.

Then shall the "beauty of the Lord" continue to be upon us, and he will establish the work of our hands upon us; and we shall hear and obey his voice (as his ancient people heard it), bidding us "Go forward," "Be not slack to possess the land!"
